CCCC Accreditation Program

ACCREDITED MEMBER

As public trust in charities continues to decline, a growing number of Canadians are looking for evidence of a charity's credibility before deciding to make a donation. Many ministries struggle to demonstrate their trustworthiness in a compelling way and find it challenging to ensure that they are meeting the highest standards.

CCCC'S ACCREDITATION PROGRAM FOR MINISTRIES

Accredited membership with Canadian Centre for Christian Charities (CCCC) helps ministries to demonstrate a high degree of financial, organizational, and governance excellence by earning the designation of CCCC Accredited Member. Accredited members agree to abide by CCCC's Standards of Accountability and voluntarily undergo regular external reviews. Accreditation builds greater confidence with donors and partners that leverages the charity's ability to pursue its mission.

“Accreditation is important to us because the next generation of Canadians is looking for accountability and integrity when considering causes to support. CCCC has been an incredible help to us, equipping us with best practices and recommendations that have increased our effectiveness as we interact with donors and regulatory bodies.”

—Rich Birch, Executive Director,
Camp Mini-Yo-We
